Creating a Position Description

The purpose of building a staff position description is to clearly define the roles, responsibilities and expectations for a specific position within our organization to set the employee up for success. This document serves as a vital tool for guiding recruitment, performance evaluation and career development, ensuring that both the employee and the organization have a mutual understanding of the job requirements and objectives. Creating and/or modifying a position description is a collaborative process between the relevant departmental contacts and University Human Resources. Please work with your appropriate contacts to ensure the position description is filled out completely prior to submitting through the approval workflow.

Select the ellipses at the top, right of page and select Recruit for Position

A pop up will appear on screen, select the blue recruit for position button and refer to the How to create a Job Card process document

Recruit for position ×

Raising a Job Requisition will create a draft Job in the ATS with the selected Job Type or the default one.

Recruit for...

Once Recruit for Position is selected the job card template will automatically appear on the screen.

NOTE: The position number was added by the Human Resources Consultant and is now visible at the end of the Display Job Title. Please leave this position number at the end of the Display Job Title. Do not use any dashes (-) or other symbols, but simply a single space after the title followed by the appropriate position number. For multi-hire job cards, please use the originating position number, which is the first position in the "number of openings" field.

NOTE: required fields are marked with an asterics*
