

Brent Douglas

Executive Strategist and Corporate Advisor

GiANT Partners - President

As President of GiANT Partners, Brent loves to help companies unlock the secrets of organizational and leadership growth. With more than 20 years of experience in helping businesses solve problems, his executive leadership and vision in the areas of technology and product development, operational improvement, and strategic business planning have consistently driven improved growth and performance in these companies.

Brent began his career as an electrical design engineer and worked on a variety of technologies in the computer equipment, medical, industrial and government sectors. Later he moved into significant leadership roles, serving as COO for two technology companies and as Vice President of Operations for a global construction products company prior to joining GiANT.

Guided by his experience in leading organizations and augmented by the formal training he received as an electrical engineer, Brent brings a unique perspective to his work with companies and leaders across the United States. He focuses not just on developing the right strategy, but also on converting that strategy into the activities that lead to growth.

Leadership History:

- President, GiANT Partners
- CEO, Redwood Business Advisors
- VP of Operations, MD Building Products
- COO, SmartTool Technologies
- COO, Vigilink Corporation
- Board of Directors, Junior Achievement

Brent holds a Masters Degree in Business Administration with special distinction from Oklahoma City University; a Masters Degree in Electrical Engineering from Oklahoma State University; and a Bachelors Degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Oklahoma.

He lives in Edmond, Oklahoma with his wife and two sons.
